

TRUST IN GOVERNMENT:

LOBBYING FOR OPEN AND FAIR DECISION MAKING

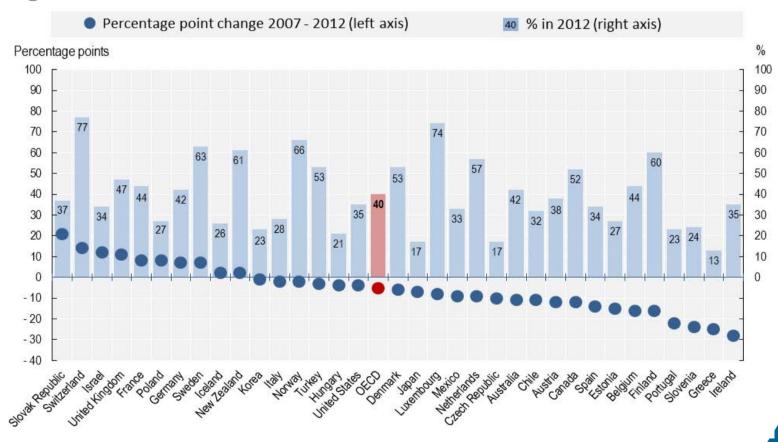

Janos Bertok OECD Public Governance and Territorial Development Directorate

Trust in government is low and has been declining

• Confidence in national government in 2012 and its change between 2007 and 2012 (descending order according to percentage change)

Corruption and "wrong incentives driving policies" are key levers of mistrust in government

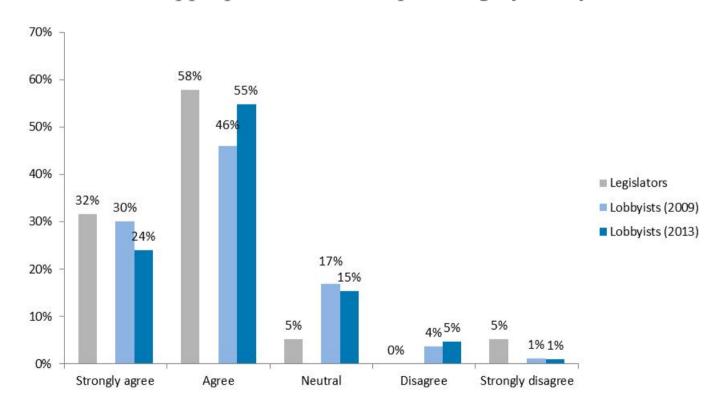

• Correlation: confidence in national government and perception of government corruption (2012)

Transparency would help alleviate actual or perceived problems of inappropriate influence peddling by lobbyists

What information should be made public?

Addressing lobbying concerns is a key policy lever to restore trust in governments

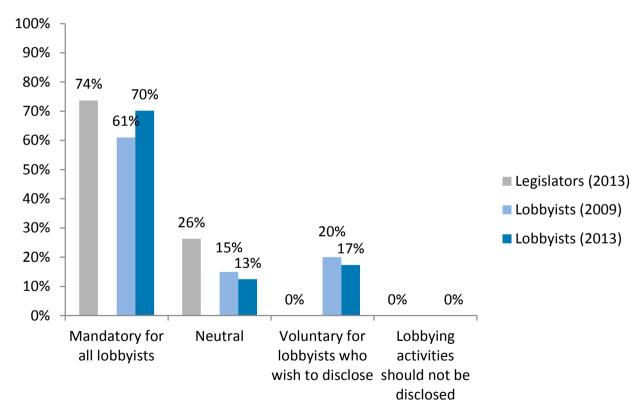

Countries have increasingly opted for introducing regulation on lobbying

**>>

Lobbyists also support the regulation of lobbying

Should transparency of lobbying activities be mandatory for all lobbyists or voluntary for those who wish to disclose?

But regulations remain difficult to apply in practice...

- Clear definition of lobbyist and lobbying
- Disclosure requirements: intent, beneficiaries, funding
- Enforceable standards of conduct for fostering a culture of integrity in lobbying: avoid misuse of confidential information, conflict of interest
- Mechanisms for implementation and securing compliance: management, monitoring and enforcing

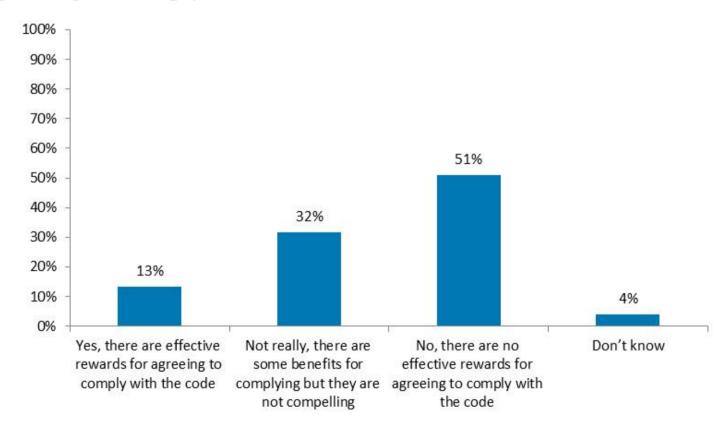

The majority of lobbyists responded that the lobbying code of conduct provides good principles that are easily applied to specific situations...

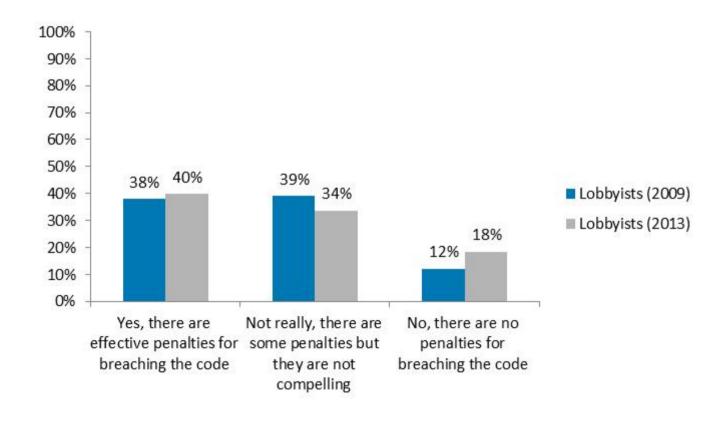

... but on the other hand said that there are no effective rewards for agreeing to comply with the code.

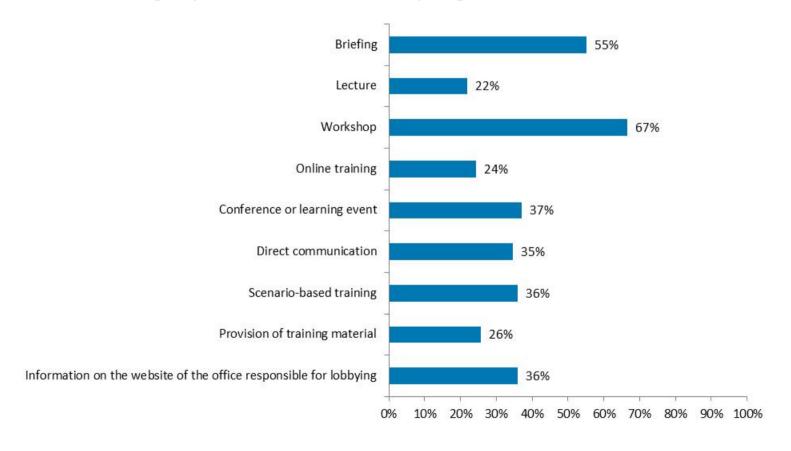

Are there effective penalties for breaching the code?

What do lobbyists believe to be the most effective ways of learning about integrity standards in lobbying?

Moving forward: fairness in decision making

- Focus on implementation challenges
- But also high risk areas, with stronger emphasis on those who make the decisions:
  - Revolving door
  - Political finance
- OECD Forum on Transparency and Integrity in Political Financing will take place 14-15 November 2013 at OECD.
